May

Is this the coldest start to May on record?

I cannot remember a colder start to May. We seem to have had cold north winds for the last fortnight. I know the first weekend at Broadlands in Hampshire was awful and I was tying flies on the S&TA tent for the Nottinghamshire Agricultural Show on the second weekend. It was so wet and cold that it was almost impossible to tie.

The report for the Group One Match on Bewl the same weekend also indicated that the weather in the South East was unpleasant.

I remember the drought summer of 1976? When it snowed on Whit Monday morning, cleared up by mid day and we did not see another cloud until September.

What we need is a warm wet summer, with light winds. But I don't suppose we shall get one!

Not Staying for the Meal!

The A.M.F.C. has been going for nearly 25 years and a number of things have defined the unique nature of the competition.

We are a 'Club - Association' event, not just a group of anglers who make up a team for competitions. Our matches are part of a programme, not a one off, or knock-out event.

Our main awards are for winning Clubs and have no monetary value. We have no sponsors, nor ever sought any, so we are entirely independent.

Finally, and I think this has been a most important definer of the Association's culture; we always meet together after each match for a social meal.

When no member of the team stays for the post match meal I think it disrespectful to the organiser and rude to all the other teams and competitors.

If your club is not represented when the results are announced during the meal, it does no favours to the way your club is thought of by other members of the Association.

There are occasions when people cannot stay for the meal. Sadly it seems to me that over the last two years one or two teams regard not staying for the meal as the norm. I do not think this is good enough!

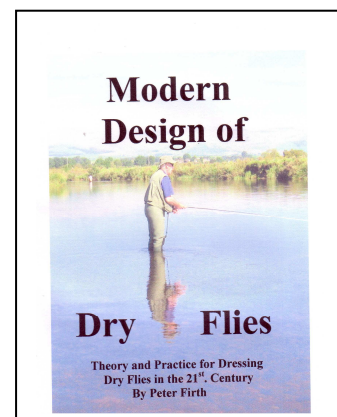

In the past there have been complaints, many of which I have supported, about value for money. Since we have almost abandoned on site catering the situation has changed.

At Grafham most catering is at the Wheatsheaf at Perry. At Rutland we now use the Wheatsheaf at Edith Westen. At Eyebrook I have eaten at both pubs in Caldecott. At all these the value for money has been perfectly satisfactory.

I leave you with the description the meal at Bewl for the Group One match last Saturday. 'Those of you who did not stay for the meal missed a real treat for cold anglers. A large plate of creamy chicken and mushroom pie with a perfect short crust pastry, made by the chef this morning and accompanied by new potatoes or chips, carrots, peas and leeks, followed by a mound of apple crumble, all freshly made, then coffee for those that had room for it. For £8.00 astounding!'

And now for a personal advert

Some of you will know that I am dry fly stupid! (It does work on still waters – yesterday I caught 14 in two and a quarter hours on my local still water) I have written a little booklet which I intended to call 'A Unifying Theory for the Design of Modern Dry Flies' but that seemed a bit unwieldy so it is just called 'Modern Design of Dry Flies'. If anyone would like a copy they are £3.00. Contact address below.

Although there had been some sharp showers beforehand, the match started off in dry but heavily overcast conditions with a light east north easterly wind of around 5 knots. From noon onwards the wind became much gustier and the drizzle developed into showers. The average temperature was around 9.5° C but felt a good 2 degrees lower in the wind. Pretty miserable.

The best catching areas were Hook Straight and the Nose, although fish were showing fairly close in from Monty's Seat and Ferry Point to Dunsters. With the fish relatively high in the water the favoured method was a fast glass line with a cormorant dropper and a booby on the point. Tequila was a good colour combination. Others used a sink tip or slow intermediate and the occasional Di 3. Some of the more liberated souls used a 'Woofter', which I gather is a gay concoction in pastel shades of pink and green. How the trout felt about this I'm not sure, but I have my reservations.

The deterioration in the weather around noon seemed to have a marked effect on the trout's willingness to feed and those that found pockets of fish and bagged up either did so with ease before midday or worked considerably harder in the afternoon to achieve their limit.

The average weight was fairly consistent at just under 2lbs per trout, so well done to Ian Lishman (Fish Hawks) for his 3lb 7oz fish, and team mate Al Gamble with one of 3lb 1oz. A tight contest for best bag with Mike Gunnell (Rutland) on 21lb 6oz, and Clive Perkins (Bristol) hot on his heels with 20lb 13oz. Also a close run thing with Bewl finishing first with a total of 74lbs 9oz, just 1lb 12oz ahead of Rutland with 72lbs 13oz. Well done to Bristol for making it to third place with only four rods.

Best Fish of Season

I leave you with an edited letter from Ray French of the Bewl Team as the Match Report

The water had been fishing really hard the previous few days in fact the season rod average was only 2 point something since March. On match day because of the poor fishing in the dam area and main bowl we decided to split the team up cover the whole reservoir including Stoke Dry in an effort to wrinkle out a biggy.

As we thought, the majority who hadn't been up earlier stayed up the main end and struggled.

Struggled that is until a bloody great lorry pulled up near the bank opposite the lodge at about 11am and dumped a huge load of stock fish, almost into a couple of Army boats! Of course all the boats that had witnessed this, attacked the shoal immediately trapping it against the bank, bag ups were then inevitable. The shoal did disperse a little apparently, mostly toward the dam where some more competitors were pleasantly surprised by this unexpected 'rise' of co-operative fish.

Meanwhile, those boats in Stoke Dry and other extremities had no idea of any of this until it was way too late when they trickled back up in the afternoon to see what was going on. It had been a struggle with little reward but we knew it would be and assumed it was for everyone else. How wrong we were. It spoilt the day and frankly any motivation for competition. In fact my boat partner Dave Kidby in disgust suggested we go back to Stoke Dry, so we did and had a pleasant afternoon spotting large fish and trying for them, in fact I lost a lovely fish but in the end we both returned empty handed. Some of our team picked up fish at the dam but it was always a case of too little too late.

Now, I don't blame any anglers for taking advantage of the stocking situation, I would probably have done the same but I do blame Eyebrook management for stocking in the middle of a competition or at the very least NOT telling the AMFC Team organisers on the day so that perhaps an out of bounds area could have been considered. For many it was two wasted days, at some expense, on almost impossible fish. Yes that's fishing, but it wasn't the same for everyone on match day and that's not fair in a competition.

The night before the match was one of the coldest recorded in May for many years and the fish proved fairly elusive in the morning.

small brownies there while the match was in progress.

Most people opted for buzzers, diawl bachs and crunchers on floating lines or midge tips, but I did hear a rumour that Ray Starling bagged up using a Di7 and orange booby. Eddie Gray

At the 'off' most of the boats headed to one of two destinations – either Pitsford Creek or the small half just to the right. This was when we discovered the wind, or lack of it. If you set up to drift with the drogue the wind would die; the minute you took the drogue in it would spring up again from a different direction. Very tiresome.

told me that he had four of his fish on dries (hoppers).

After the weigh-in ably carried out by Nathan, we had a magnificent buffet in the lodge. This had been prepared by Soldier Palmers 'B' organiser Graham Lumsdon and was excellent value at £4 per head.

Boats drifting towards the mouth of Pitsford Creek saw plenty of fish, and plenty of action from a boat anchored in the middle of a huge shoal of fish. Some people picked up 'freebie' fish as Anglian Water stocked a couple of hundred

A Short Report of the Group Four Match on Bawl from Tunbridge Wells F.F.S the Organisers

The Match was fished in bright conditions with a light breeze blowing off the dam. Most teams concentrated their efforts on the main bowl. Most fish were caught tight into the margins and the Chingley Bank fished particular well. The most productive method was two Boobys fished 10 foot apart on a Di 3 or Di 5.

The 18 anglers caught 116 fish between them, a rod average of 6.44 fish per angler.

Not many years ago an average weight of 1lb 13oz would have been considered very satisfactory. So far this season we have had averages of 2lbs 4oz from Grafham - 2lbs 1oz from Pitsford and a staggering 2lbs 14oz from Eyebrook. The stocking referred to in the Group Two Match must have been of very large fish!
